An immense crowd attended the evening festivities at Washington park and Jones' woods, which were thrown into one for the occasion. Fully 5,000 people were present. The diversion which seemed to please those present in the highest degree was that of throwing a ball at an efflgy of the German chancellor. IN THE WILDS OF FLORIDA

Alleged Discovery of Minimiles and Treasures Thousands of Years Old.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 16.-A party of well known Atlanta gentlemen, Messrs. W. P. Carter, Alfred Ni: au, H. B. Wrenn and Frederick Maxwell, just returned from a hunting and fishing trip to the everglades of Florida, tell a wonderful story about a discovery made by them in the depth of this vast swamp, which will no doubt go far towards dispelling the mystery which has hitherto so closely enveloped the primeval inhabitants of this centinent—the Mound

Decided to Penetrate the Everglades.

The party had been out for about two The party had been out for about two weeks and had not been very snecessful, game being comparatively scarce. Learning from the natives that they would find better sport by going deeper into the recesses of this trackless swamp, although warned at the same time of the deeper of doing so owing to the diffidanger of doing so, owing to the diffi-culty of treading one's way back through its tangled mazes, they decided to pene-trate the famous everglades.

Floated Into a Large Loke. Securing a light boat, manned by two negroes, with provisions to last them for a fortnight, they started down one of the sluggish streams leading towards the heart of the swamp. Tewnrds the end of the fourth day, during which time shooting and fishing had both been a good deal better, they were surprised to find themselves issue from the tan-gled jungle and float out on a large, beautiful lake. In the center of this sheet of water- was au irregular-shaped island, probably a half mile in length and almost the same in width, standing considerably above the level of the surrounding marshes, and comparatively bare of vegetation.

An Island With a Mound on It. On this islaud was a circular mound about 100 feet high, covered with various kinds of trees. The lunters at once landed with the purpose of exploring what they immediately surmised to be a relic of the ancient Mound Builders. They soon found that the trees were of a species that they had never seen before, the wood being of a remarkable close fiber and hardness, and when, after considerable time and labor, the two negroes succeeded in felling one of the smallest, the rings showed it to be almost 2,000 years old. Into the Mound's Interior.

Mr. Carter, the first to arrive at the summit of the eminence, discovered a shaft sunk in the bowels of the mound. No rope being procarable, a grapevine was substituted, and Mr. Carter began his descent into the darkness of the opening. After having been lowered a short distance, feeling at the same time on the sides with a stick, he perceived a sudden widening of the shaft, and, striking a match, found a corrider ex-California. Walsh is now a feremost tending on both sides as far as he could hand on a Panama steamer and will sail in a few days, as no attempt has been made to detain him. by Mr. Maxwell, and the two started out to ensure the mysteries of the mound. They had proceeded but a few yards when the gallery suddenly en-larged and disclosed to them a chamber about fifteen feet high and twenty feet

Rows of Coffins.

Here a strange sight met their eyes. In rows are nd the room were queerly shaped ceriius, unde of the wood of the trees which grew on the mound, and covered with unintelligible characters. Grouped around each coffin were geld pots and urensils of great value, also inscribed with hieroglyphics. In tho middle of the room was a miniature mound, and in this were found pots, images and various bric-a-brac. Searching further, they found several similar chambers, some empty and some filled with all manner of strange and curious articles.

A Treasure Chamber. Returning to the shaft and descending further, another corridor was found connecting with more rooms than the first one, but on reaching the bottom the explorers discovered the third gallery leading into a chamber the splendor and magnifleence of which fairly took away their breath. While the walls of the rooms on the other levels were of earth, the walls of this were of beaten silver, the ceiling of a kind of unknown blue metal, thickly strewn with diamonds to represent stars, and the floor of bruss.

Thirteen Gold Thrones.

On one side of this room were thirteen gold thrones, exquisitely carved, ou which sat as many mummies, these no doubt being the deceased kings of this people. Opposite each throne was a marble statue—probably representing the king it faced. In the center of the chamber was a mound similar to those in the other rooms, in which were found coronets, scepters, and other insignia of royalty. Securing as many trophies as they could well take care of the party set out on their return to civilization.

Further Investigations to Be Made. Mr. Carter says the relics will be placed in the Sigithsonian institute and that he will soon lead a party of scieutists to the island with a view of making further expiorations.

Corson, the Republicans' David, isn' receiving much encouragement and sup port in his race for Treasurer from some of that pariy's organs. The Louisville Commercial complains that the Repub liean Star of that city "has no good word to say of or for Mr. Colson." But that doesn't matter. The Republicans are deep in the woods and the Star can't furnish enough light to enable them to get out in August.

THE Louisville Times believes "the Republicans of Kentucky are making s still hunt, and have every nerve strained' to elect Colson State Treasurer. While we don't believe there is much of a still hunt in progress, still that is no reason why any Democrat should remain away from the polls on the 5th day of August. All of you are interested in the welfare of the party, and every one of you should lurn out and vote.

POSTMASTER GENERAL WANAMAKER attempted to scale down the tariff on a lot of wicker baskets he recently imported but failed and had to hand over the regular rate. This leads the Chicago News to remark that he is "enough of a free trader when he buys anything from abroad to kick vigorously against paying an import duty. There are lots of people who want to see the other fellows taxed for the good of the country, but who don't like to be taxed themselves."

Trusts have been the subject of much discussion in the conventions that are engaged in preparing constitutions for the new States, and the people out that way seem to entertain an entirely different opinion of these "private affairs" from that expressed by Secretary Blaine. They look upon these organization as "unlawful combinations," gotten up by a few individuals expressly for the purpose of robbing the masses. The constitutions of the new States will likely have some provisions on the subject.

THE C. and O. Railway Company can not find a better location anywhere along the river line for its sliops than right here at Maysville. The ground adjoining the city on the east is splendidly situated, and would afford ample room for all the necessary buildings and yards. There are several influential citizens of Maysville on intimate terms with many of the railway officials and have been for the past year or two, but we doubt whether they have ever so much as lifted a finger to induce the company to locate shops here. There isn't a city or county along the route that has done half as much for the route that has done half as much for the route that has done half as much for the road as Maysville and Mason County.

The Followers of Karl Marx Meet in Paris.

OPENING DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Every Nation in Europe Represented. German Delegates Especially Welcomed. Startling War News from Rome-Other Foreign Dispatches.

Paris, July 16.-The Socialist congress, which convened in this city vesterday, is composed exclusively of the followers of Karl Marx, and the congress itself is spoken of as the Marxist congress, to distinguish it from another convention of Socialists which assembled here yesterday, who are known as the Possibilists, and who meet in Saale Petre.

Germany has a representation of ninety-three in the Marxist congress, including the leaders of the German social Democratic party. Such men as Bebel, Liebknecht and Vollmar, Messrs.
Morris, Carsen and Hardy are present from England, while Australia's delegation is headed by that well known Socialist, Dr. Ablen. Every nation in Europe is represented.

M. Lafarque, of France, delivered the opening speech, extending the welcome of Paris and of France to the members of the congress, but the German delegates more to than to all others, he desired to extend the hand of fellowship.
He wished to demonstrate to the world that race prejudices which its tyrants everywhere fostered and encouraged to everywhere fostered and encouraged to further their own selfish ambitions, had no place in the hearts of the Socialists of France, who could welcome their German brother with a love that was all the stronger for the hate they were expected to bring him.

Two chairmen were elected to serve for the day—M. Vaillant, councillor of the Paris municipality, and Herr Lieb-knecht, member of the German parlia-ment. The latter gentleman in addressing the congress spoke in German, French and English.

The opening hour of the convention,

8:30 in the morning, stamps it at the outset as a workingman's gathering, an tary service compulsory.

This meal was also characteristic, all luncheon together and on wholesome but inexpensive viands, the prices of which were within Tex. Upon his breast was a piece of paper the reach of the proleteriat, who constitute by far the largest portion of those present.

The best of feeling prevails among the delegates, and all express great enthusiasm as to the importance of the work the congress will accomplish.

Some of the delegates to this convention also take part in the Possibilist congress at Salle Petrelle, but none of the ninety-three German Socialists will go near the other gutliering.

Startling War News.

London, July 16.—Some warlike news telegraphed from Rome, where L'Opinione, in an article evidently inpired, warms the Italian that the French war minister has perfected the details of a march across the Italian frontier, and it is merely necessary to give the word, and the border provinces give the word, and the border provinces are at the mercy of the invader. The article calls upon the government to no longer delay measures for the proper protection of the frontier.

JACKSON. Mich., July 16.—Irving Latimer, serving a life sentence for the murder of his mother, is insane or is playing the insune dodge with remarkable shrewdness. RAN INTO ELECTRICITY.

Queer Freaks of a Rain and Wind Storm at Evansville, Ind.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 16.-A heavy wind and rain storm which visited this city Sunday afternoon did much damage. Numerous electric light wires were blown down charging the pools of water and buildings with the current. Fire a foot high was emitted in many places, eausing an alarm to be sounded.

The fire department responded, and being unaware of the condition of things, rushed into what was almost eertain death. Horses and firemen alike were knocked down by the electricity. Citizens rushed in, and met a similar fate, and for a time excitement ran high. When the current was shut off over a dozen persons were found un-eonscious, but their lives were saved. Several of the firemen, however, at last accounts were said to be in a preenrious condition.
